Kathleen Linke, PA-C

Kathleen Linke received her BS in Exercise Physiology at Kent State University located in Kent, Ohio, and her Masters of Medical Science degree from Baldwin Wallace University, Physician Assistant Program, Berea, Ohio.

As a research assistant for the Kent State University Physiology Department, Katie studied Parkinson's disease and the use of stationary bicycle exercise for symptom improvement. She assisted patients with equipment and monitoring during exercise as well as statistical analysis. She also helped conduct a research study examining neuromuscular response after focused vibratory stimulation in an effort to explore non-pharmacologic treatment modalities for certain neuromuscular disorders. This experience inspired her passion for research and solidified her beliefs in the importance of exercise for individual health and wellness. Her hard work and dedication to scholastic excellence during this time earned Katie the award for Most Outstanding Undergraduate in Exercise Science, 2014, Kent State University.

During her medical training at Baldwin Wallace University, Katie developed a special interest in gastroenterology and actively pursued experience opportunities geared toward this field of medicine, including elective rotations at Northshore Gastroenterology and Endoscopy Center, Westlake, Ohio and at St. John Medical Center, Westlake, Ohio, where she enthusiastically delivered care to individuals in the hospital as well as outpatient gastroenterology clinic.

In her spare time, Katie likes to enjoy the outdoors, participate in 5k fundraising events and volunteer her time at local animal shelters. In the future she wishes to give back by becoming a student preceptor and mentoring young, aspiring PAs. She is very motivated and feels very privileged to serve the people of Southern California with their medical needs.
